My coaching sessions provided a unique opportunity to obtain confidential, objective feedback on any topic I wished to discuss. It was a gift to devote time to thinking about how to approach my work strategically. My coach took time to get to know me, to understand the nuances of my work, and to gather the context of my circumstances. He then used this information to help me resolve difficult decisions, identify priorities, and implement thoughtful action plans. I am a more successful in all aspects of my work as a result of these valuable sessions.
