

PARTNERING SESSION WITH VELOCITY ADVISORY GROUP

Align your teams for efficient, on-schedule and on-budget project delivery

31%

of projects are delivered within 10% of original budget¹

25%

of projects are completed within 10% of original schedule¹

61%

of U.S. construction project owners have experienced at least one underperforming project¹

“Working with Velocity Advisory Group has been transformative for our organization.

Their guidance through our strategic planning as we have grown has been instrumental to our success, and their training programs and expertise significantly enhanced our team’s leadership skills, driving both personal and professional growth.”

 Rex Kirby, President, Verdex Construction

Poor communication is the #1 reason why construction projects underperform or fail.²

In an industry like construction, a lack of communication and alignment between teams — especially in the early stages of a project — can have a significant impact on project performance and success. Breakdowns in communication can result in redoing work, project delays, safety issues, cost overruns, and challenging disputes.

→ Get everyone on the same page

In large, complex projects, getting everyone on the same page from the start is essential. Partnering sessions bring all key players together to create alignment on project goals, roles, and potential challenges. By addressing potential issues early on, these sessions help prevent costly delays and conflicts down the road.

Investing in a partnering session upfront is more than just a formality; it’s a strategic move that saves time, money, and improves overall project outcomes.

1. <https://www.hm-ec.com/blog-posts/why-do-construction-projects-fail-the-importance-of-communication-hm>
2. <https://www.gnp Realty.com/news/why-communication-matters-in-commercial-construction/>